BURTON OPPOSES IT

Stormy Session Witnesses Debate Between Ohio Senator and McAdoo.

Condemnation of the alleged ruthless Condemnation of the alleged ruthless and cynical perpetration of fraud and injustice by foreign steamship companies upon merchants of this country, approval of permitting American commercial interests reasonably to combine for the furtherance of their trade in other lands, and an appeal to the business men of the nation not to stand at this critical time in the way of the development of American commerce were features emphasized by Secretary of Commerce Redfield in an address last night at the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at the Willard.

The chamber at the close of its afternoon session voted overwhelmingy in condemnation of the ship-purchase bill. The vote was 161 to 90 in favor of a majority committee report in opposition to measure, but the motion just failed of passage because of the need of a twothirds majority to carry. A minority committee report, condemning the general principle of government ownership of merchant vessels, but urging the approval of the ship-purchase bill as a matter of expediency to meet present economic emergency, was voted down by almost unanimity. The question of favoring or disapproving the passage of the measure then was voted to be sent to the individual chambers of commerce composing the national body for referendum action.

Calls Conditions Intolerable. Secretary Redfield, throughout his speech, emphasized that he had no in-tention of referring to the ship-purchase bill, but he pointed out that conditions were intolerable and that they demanded immediate attention. "I do not care to suggest a remedy." he said. "I am open to any remedy that will remedy, and remedy quickly; but in my judgment it is the worse politics and ally bad business to get

f American commerce now. Indirectly he was attributed to have taken a slap at the action of the conven-tion in submitting the question of approval or disopproval of the ship-purchase bill to referendum vote. He said: "This situation is something not to be resolved about a year or two hence, but omething to be acted upon at once.' Secretary Redfield emphasized th distinct points in the course of his speech -the attitude of the administration business, explaining in detail what has been done during the past two years for TRIO OF FAVORITES the benefit of American business men; the attitude of business to business, urging the business men of the United States to uphold the honor of American com petration of fraud and the attitude of America toward the rest of the world, declaring that foreign steamship com panies are openly and ruthlessly break-ing their contracts and flatly refusing handle American trade other than that which they please to handle, Opposes Alien Domination. He said in part: "I am very much amused and very much surprised at the idea of American merchant marine being mixed up in this particular of the field of civic pageantry in America problem that I have laid before you. I do not regard them as at all the "Saint of the government are in the hands the night that Poll's threw open its doors I regard the thing that is going to take a good players was immediate. Chief Justice Covington, of the District ordially to the delightful reading of the Supreme Court, indirectly praised the The speaker was introduced by a lea should not look askance at public paid appealing tribute to the enterprise, and should not fear that the government is impotent to conduct the affairs of this great nation."

Charles S. Hamlin, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, declared that the United States now has the best banking system in the world, and that the Federal reserve act, when in full operation, will make this country center of the financial exchanges of the world.

The afternoon session was a stormy

Secretary McAdoo appealed for suppor for the purchase bill on the grounds that the country has not available sufficient ships to provide for an easy flow of our commerce. He said exorbitant freight rates are being charged for shipments on available vessels and denied that any international complications would be threatened. Senator Burton declared the organization of a shipping corporation would be nothing more than a mask and that it would be real government ownership and government operation. This, he said, might plunge the country into 'ternational controversies in the end the seriousness of which may not be foreseen Report Is Against Plan.

William Harris Douglas, chairman o the ship-purchase bill committee, submitted the majority report, the principle sentences of which read: "Government aid is absolutely essential to upbuild our merchant marine, and we recommend it merchant marine, and we recommend it be freely and adequately given. We be-lieve the proposed government plan of purchase or construction, even if opera-tion is avoided by chartering to private persons, is wrong in pripciple and unwise if the result sought can be secured by private initiative supplemented by rease able government aid." The report embodied a substitute rem-
